

Johnathan,

I've been keeping up with you, and I'm so glad you're still that same loving Johnathan I've known for the past 30 years. Don't ever change.

Everyone I know loves you - your music, and most of all, all, your heart.

I watched a video this afternoon of the work you do feeding the homeless, and it grabbed my heart.

God certainly loves through you in such a beautiful ways.

By the way...

your new song. 'Power In His Name', truly touched my heart this evening.

I was focusing on some of my personal health issues, and your song reminded me that all I need to do is call on Jesus.

Thank you for that I did.

Thank you honey for that reminder.

I've also watched Markel grow over the years.

The love that I see in your eyes for him and your grands is definitely contagious...

Johnathan, they are beautiful, but of course you are too.

Here's a chorus (or maybe a verse)
that I wrote a while back.

You can have the lyrics
if you'd like to finish writing it.

Love makes the difference

Love changes things

Love gives hope.

No matter what life brings

Love is the answer

Love pours from above

Love mends a broken heart

No matter what — always give love

Love,

Dolly
